Susquehanna Financial Group Continues to Build out Boston Sales Effort

New York, November 18, 2009 – Susquehanna Financial Group, LLLP (SFG), announced today, the continued broad expansion of its institutional equity effort with the addition of three seasoned sales hires in its Boston office. Art Oswald, SFG's Head of Research Sales and Regional Manager of the Boston office recognized the need for increased services, and that the addition of Scott Delano, Jason Gaunt and Kevin Shumway would not only address the need but also propel SFG ahead of competitors in regard to creating a best in class client services offering.

"We couldn't be happier about adding such high quality athletes to our current Boston team," says Art Oswald. "We have long admired Kevin and Scott as best in class competitors in Boston and Jason is a tremendous talent and someone I have known as a client and friend over the years in his various buy-side roles."

Scott Delano is a senior sales trader who joins SFG from First Tennessee's Boston office. Mr. Delano spent 12 years at Bank of America prior to FTN.

Jason Gaunt, who was a Director of Trading and Risk Management at Boston Hedge Fund LightKeeper Investments, will join the firm in January. Jason also held senior trading roles at RiverSource Investments, Jefferies & Co., and MFS Investment Management prior to joining LightKeeper.

Kevin Shumway joins SFG's team after spending the last 11 years as a senior sales trader for Bank of America's Boston office.

"It is extremely important that we deliver the highest quality product in the Boston market and that means hiring people who know how to add value and service their clients," said Cory Carlesimo, SFG's Head of Cash Equities. "Art has done a great job of adding significant talent to complement the existing team. Scott and Kevin have been a powerful tandem in Boston for quite some time and Jason is a real talent who brings a wealth of buy-side perspective from his previous roles."
